

Efficiency of Administration Based on the Principle of Good Governance : A Case Study of Chairit Subdistrict Administrative Organization, Chaiyo District, Angthong Province

Chana Rattanapakdee

Chawiwon Pooranihee

Tawatchai Sawaengsab

Amporn Panya

Tassanee Lakkhanapichonchat

Abstract

The objectives of the study were as follows : 1) to investigate the efficiency of administration based on the principle of good governance in the case of Chairit Subdistrict Administrative Organization; 2) to ascertain the factors that were related to the efficiency of administration based on the principle of good governance; and 3) to offer recommendations for the enhancement of the efficiency of administration based on the principle of good governance; and 3) to offer recommendations for the enhancement of the efficiency of administration based on the principle of good governance.

350 locals out of 3,000 locals living under the jurisdiction of Chairit Subdistrict Administrative Organization were used as the sample of the study. The sample size was determined by means of Yamane's formula. The questionnaires were the study tool of the study. The collected data were analyzed using descriptive statistics, a t-test, and an F-test.

As a result of the data analysis, the researcher has discovered the following facts.

On the whole, the efficiency of administration based on the principle of good governance was found to be at a very high level.

Respondents with different sexes, ages, marital statuses, education levels, family sizes and incomes failed to differ in their opinions toward the efficiency of administration based on the principle of good governance.

Keywords : efficiency administration good governance

History and Significance of the Problem

Today there are a lot of changes in Thailand notably political change. As a result of political change, reform of governance copped up in B.E.2537. In other words, the local government organization